THE NEW DEAL LOW DOWN*

A Map of New Deal New York

Following on our map of New Deal San Francisco, we're hard at work on one for the City

Go Camping In a New Deal Treasure!

The Mendocino Woodlands Camp State Park in Northern California is a National Historic of New York, slated for release in Fall 2016. It will provide a new perspective on our nation's largest city and biggest recipient of the New Deal's massive public investment and job creation programs. Collective memory has faded over the years, but the landscape of New York was dramatically transformed during the Roosevelt/LaGuardia years.

Landmark, built in the 1930s by the WPA. Nestled in 700 acres of redwood trees, the Mendocino Woodlands Association has operated the site since 1949, hosting camping trips by a wide range of organizations and social groups. Learn more, and plan your own visit.

Living New Dealer of the Month: Evan Kalish

Evan Kalish, our New York Regional Director, is the single greatest contributor to the Living New Deal map and database, with over 2,500 projects to his credit. A computer whiz, he has discovered hundreds of hidden sources of New Deal data around the country. Evan's a post office fanatic, too, with a terrific blog, Going Postal.

Crowdsourcing: A Guide

Our New Deal map, with almost 11,000 sites, is the collective work of volunteers and associates who send us their discoveries. The Living New Deal is a public resource with public input and we're proud of our crowdsourcing. To ensure accuracy and consistency, we've created a new style guide, drawn up by Evan Kalish, to help our team in Berkeley. We continue to welcome your submissions--keep 'em coming!

* Recorded in 1932 by Don Redman and His Orchestra, with the assistance of Bill Robinson, "Doin' the New Low Down" was a hit record in the year before Franklin Roosevelt's administration undertook the New Deal.
